

Stylish Stellenbosch escape

Majeka House

Majeka House is an elegant rural retreat set in a lavender- and rose-scented country garden. Situated close to cosmopolitan Stellenbosch, inside, the look and feel are contemporary with an utterly indulgent edge.

A highlight of this smart small hotel is its in-house restaurant, run by talented chef Anri Diener, who has done stints in some heavyweight local kitchens. Anri's menu changes with the seasons and is ingredient-driven and innovative, while remaining grounded firmly in the French classics. Open daily for all meals, the restaurant has an adjoining bar and alfresco tables in the garden. A Sanctuary Spa offers all-out pampering or respite for those who may have overindulged in this hedonistic corner of the world. The intimate spa (which has an extensive menu of exclusive treatments) leads onto a huge, enclosed swimming pool with a sleek retractable roof for warm weather. With only 18 rooms, guests check in for the personal service imbued with Gallic charm by owners Karine (from France) and her husband Lloyd and their delightful staff. Thoughtful touches abound and all the rooms have spacious designer bathrooms with a huge glass-tiled shower with wood underfoot and a line-up of heavenly Moya products on the double vanity. Although the entire hotel is child friendly, a fully self-contained family villa with a private pool and three additional spacious suites, all with verandas overlooking a second outdoor pool, are ideal for anyone travelling with children or in a party.
